ABSTRACT

The Biofuel Marketplace project is created in order to provide an interactive web-based forum where Europe's biofuel stakeholders can promote their technologies, exchange ideas, sell and buy biofuel products, disseminate results of national, international and European research activities and raise awareness to the public and the professional community. The on-line supply and demand information system is expected to encourage the further exploitation of the EU biofuels potential and also provide efficient help to reduce European dependency on conventional fuels.
